

Doximity Privacy Policy and Terms

Summary of Revisions Made

2014-03-06

Updates to the Privacy Policy

If you close your Doximity account, we will remove all of the personal information that you have provided to Doximity from our publicly viewable database, as well as any private profile information that you have stored with us. We will retain the publicly available data in the database, including all of the information about you that was available on our database prior to your joining the Doximity network.

Updates to the End User License Agreement

License and warranty for your submissions to Doximity:

Note messages containing electronic protected health information between users should be submitted through DocMail, which is encrypted.

Updates to EXHIBIT A: HIPAA BUSINESS ASSOCIATE AGREEMENT BETWEEN DOXIMITY AND PROVIDER

Doximity is a “Business Associate” and Users are “Providers” under the BA Agreement in instances when Users upload protected health information to Doximity.

Subcontractors that register as Users, or agree to the terms of Doximity’s Privacy Policy and Terms, and receive, maintain, or transmit protected health information on behalf of Doximity are “Business Associates” of Doximity and also subject to terms of this Agreement.
